Headline:
Remaining cold, wet and windy, with snow over hills.

Today:
A wet day with persistent outbreaks of rain over much of the region but snow and hill fog over higher ground. A cold day, the feeling being reinforced by a steady wind along coastal areas. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Tonight:
Rain continuing throughout the night, with sleet and snow confined to high ground but leading to significant accumulations. Some widespread hill fog. A cold night. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Thursday:
Rain persisting through much of the day though becoming gradually confined to the north during the evening. Sleet and snow continuing over high ground. Less cold. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Friday, outbreaks of rain but some dry interludes at times. Wet and windy on Saturday, perhaps turning to snow later, along with gales. Sunday, cold and windy with snow showers.
